

How can I determine what courses will transfer?

The Office of the Registrar will evaluate your transcripts to determine what college level courses will apply toward a bachelor's degree. A summary of credits accepted, a major degree audit and a classification can be determined if you submit your transcripts early. While unofficial evaluations may be completed on unofficial transcripts, official copies are required for a degree audit to be developed. Technical, vocational and remedial classes will not transfer. NNU does not accept grades below a C- (1.75) for transfer. If you have course work from a college outside of the U.S., official course descriptions in English are required.

Will I lose credit if I transfer to NNU from a quarter system?

If a student is transferring from a quarter system to NNU, that student will not lose credits. The credits are simply calculated into the semester system. Quarter credits are divided by 1.5 to calculate semester credits.

Will NNU accept college level examination program (CLEP) credit and/or Advanced Placement (AP) credits? If you earned an accepted score, you will receive units of credit for CLEP tests. This also includes credits received from AP tests. These may not be included in the residency requirement for graduation. A maximum of 25 percent of total credits required for a degree (31 credits) may be earned for non-classroom experience. All scores must be sent to the University from the testing center.

What is the maximum number of credits I can transfer?

A maximum of 62 semester credits or one-half the total required for graduation may be transferred from a two-year school. See Undergraduate Catalog at nnu.edu/catalogs for additional information about Two-Year Transfer Degrees. NNU accepts an unlimited number of credits from accredited four-year institutions. In order to graduate from NNU, a minimum of 32 credits must be earned from this institution, including at least 10 upper-division credits in the major.
